OVERTAXED

Hundreds of Norway Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed; Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains—Backache, sideache, headache, Early symptoms of kidney disease. Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Norway citizen tells here a certain cure.

Mrs. G. N. Pratt living on Danforth street, Norway, Me., says: "I suffered severely for a long time. The doctors told me my kidneys were disordered and I took their medicines but the results were unsatisfactory. I suffered from a feeling of exhaustion and weakness, my back at times became very painful and the action of the kidney secretions was irregular. A few months ago I went to Stone's drug store, and procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I am so well pleased with the results received that I do not hesitate to recommend this remedy to others."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

A Tribute.

To a Good Mother's Memory.
Not far away in a country churchyard stands a tombstone marked and stained. Time's ruthless hand has crumpled it so only part remains. Upon the one side I could trace, In memory of my dear mother, An epitaph which spoke of home Was chiseled on the other. In girlhood days I spent an hour in beautiful Month's view of the river. And viewed the monuments of fame high towering to the skies. So many sculptured marble stones Where our great heroes lie; But by this epitaph I passed in later years, For I had never seen inscribed Such words as these before. She always made home happy, What a noble record left Thy those who knew her best, Engraved upon this plain rude stone. That marked the mother's rest.

Written for the Advertiser.
One on the Lawyer.

In the lower part of the old town of B. So the first of old mustered anyone see, While a sign there erected thro' storm 'n thro' calm, Announced to the traveler, for sale, this farm. One day a customer to Squire Harsay bore 'N found the young lawyer in the old country I hear, exclaimed he, your farm is for sale, What's there of woodland, of what intervals? They those who knew her best, Engraved upon this plain rude stone. That marked the mother's rest.

One Chandler Damon happened to stand near, And he with others, this sign did observe, "Egad, yis," exclaimed Chandler, "one yoke sure would do you a good deal of good. All you've said Squire Harsay, on that farm it is true, Let me add this too, also, it 'tisn't no sin, As a load, a pair of yearlings, would haul all the crops in." DANA HARLOW.

Fryeburg.
Fire on Main Street.
Fire was discovered about 11.30 o'clock Friday morning in the basement of the house on Main street, owned and occupied by Abbie Page. This house will be remembered as the one where the great fire in August, 1906, was checked. This fire, which had gained quite a headway, was confined to the interior of the building, but the good work of the Fryeburg fire department aided by plenty of water saved the buildings in a damaged condition. Although there has not been much rain of late there seemed to be a good pressure of Green mountain water. Most of the furniture, etc., was saved but was damaged by water. Mrs. M. B. Barker, a guest at the house, lost clothing. There was no wind at the time of the fire. The cause of the fire is unknown. It was reported that the property was insured.

Miss Page had but just had her house repaired and regulated from the last fire. She is an elderly lady which makes it harder. Mrs. Mary Barker, who lost her home in the fire of 1906, was boarding with Miss Page and lost most of her clothes. Miss Page's house and furniture were well insured. Neighbors and friends were busy all the afternoon assisting her to get her things packed and clothing to places of safety. This house has been a popular boarding place for academy students for 35 years. Many a man and woman who are now grandparents will recall the days spent with "Miss Abbie."

Hon. Wm. T. Haines of Waterville and party were at the Argonaut on their way through the mountains.

George H. Cummings and wife of Harrison stopped at the Argonaut and spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Eastman. Both gentlemen were members of the Maine House of Representatives in the winter of 1890-91.

The students of Fryeburg Academy were given holiday last Wednesday and climbed Mt. Kearsarge. They had a fine day, some strenuous exercises and a good time. Ridgely C. Clark, the principal, and Miss Walker accompanied them.

The teachers of the village school very shrewdly utilized the aid of the children of their respective grades in a scheme for obtaining a "Hawthorne library" of thirty volumes for the school. The children sold certificates at ten cents each to everybody they met, some people being called upon six or eight different urchins at different hours of the day. Needless to say they collected more than the required sum in short order.

Porham Rowe, a recent graduate of Fryeburg academy, has broken into newspaper work in New Hampshire. He is the Exeter representative of the Portsmouth Evening Herald and Portsmouth Morning Chronicle, having charge of the news, advertising and circulation of those papers in that town.

EAST OTISFIELD.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jackson of Portland are visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Walter Holden of Oxford with Mrs. D. L. Holden for a few days.

D. L. Holden, who suffered a light shock, last Thursday, remains in a feeble condition.

Elbridge Greenleaf and daughter Mabel of Auburn spent Saturday and Sunday at P. C. Greenleaf's.

P. C. Greenleaf has well preserved apples of 1907 growth. For common every day eating one would prefer this year's.

D. N. Thurlow had an old fashioned husking last Saturday evening. About 30 attended. They husked corn until 11 o'clock, then came the closing exercises of the program which all enjoyed; a good old style baked bean supper. All that seemed lacking was the music. It is hoped Mr. Thurlow will plant some of the red eared kind next year.

$100 Reward, $100.
The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Catarrh is the only positive cure now known to the medical world. Catarrh is a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in their curative powers that they offer $100 for any case that it fails to cure. Send for literature of testimonials.

If not, something must be wrong with its food. If the mother's milk doesn't nourish it, she needs Scott's Emulsion. It supplies the elements of fat required for the baby. If baby is not nourished by its artificial food, then it requires

Hebron Sanatorium Farm Notes.

At the Maine Sanatorium Farm in Hebron was hatched, the twenty-fifth day of last March, a flock of White Wyandotte chicks; the twenty-sixth day of August the pullets began to lay and up to the present writing, Oct. 8, have laid 268 eggs.

We have hatched the past season between 1000 and 1100 chicks. They have been fed the dry mash feed wholly, from the time of hatching, similar to the formula given out from the Maine Experiment Station; I make a slight change. Some of the cockerels are particularly promising.

We are building up a pure-bred herd of Holstein stock, having secured three head this past spring—two heifers and a bull—first the herd of Dr. J. W. Davis of South Portland. We have some very good grades, the cow Marie giving us, July 31, twin heifer calves, very much alike and in general make-up hard to beat. The dam of these calves, working under abnormal conditions, not doing well when she calved and having pneumonia, her temperature going as high as 106—has milked 87 1/2 lbs. of 3.7 per cent. milk in one day. Another grade has milked 55 1/2 lbs. of 3.8 per cent. milk in one day; still another one milking 47 1/2 lbs. of 4 per cent. milk and giving a heifer calf that at 5 weeks old shows up wonderfully as far as udder and teats go, the udder developments being nearly as large as most yearlings. We expect to get something fine when we put our pure-bred sire on such cows as these.

We also have a grade Holstein cow that the 24th of last January gave us twin bull calves. Veal was made of both of them, selling for $21.60. This cow has milked up to Oct. 1, 6506.8 lbs. of 2.9 per cent. milk.

We are about to turn two hogs from the farm, the heaviest weighing 697 1/2 lbs. of the pure-blood Yorkshire breed. —Maine Farmer.

SOUTH HIRAM.
About 80 attended the Grange supper. Mrs. Monroe French has been on the sick list.

Mrs. Sylvia Prince went to Boston on the excursion.

Arthur Smith is digging a well. Water is a scarce thing in this locality.

Stillman Merrifield of Intervale, N. H., has visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Merrifield, Parker street.

The ladies of the Kezar Falls Grange held a sewing bee at Mrs. O. L. Mason's. They are preparing for the Grange fair.

BYRON.
Bears in Byron.

As Roy and Hanson Lohmes of West Byron were returning home from their work at noon, they found a large black bear in a trap which he had set a short distance from their home.

Brin, who was a large and fierce looking animal, had dragged the trap over half a mile and had broken off several trees three inches in thickness, in his mad fight for freedom.

Roy ran to the house and got his 30-30 rifle and shot the bear dead as the animal had made several attempts to escape.

Another bear adventure was that experienced by Grace Hodson of Andover, who, a few weeks ago visited at the Lohmes.

She started for home and had gone only a short distance when a large bear confronted her in the road. It is needless to say that the young lady did not linger but ran back to the house, where she enlisted the aid of a man and in a short time Brin's hide was tacked to the barn.

The Lohmes boys have also secured two deer, several foxes and partridges this season, which make them the champion hunters in Byron this fall.

G. W. Richards is working in the mill for Swain & Reed of Roxbury.

James Taylor and wife have gone to Dixmont to live until next spring.

Greenleaf Hodson and wife of Mechanic Falls have been making a short visit here.

E. G. Knapp has completed the State road in district No. 1, where the State road is located.

Miller Whitney, who has been visiting his mother and brother the past two months, has returned to his company in New York. Mr. Whitney belongs to the regular army.

John S. Ames has recently purchased the field and wood lot connected with the farm of the late Wallace W. Hazen, on the Fryeburg road. The lot known as the "hester piece," lying between the Fryeburg and the Hazen road, has been purchased by Mrs. Ames.

Confidence

We Back Up Our Statements With Our Personal Reputation and Money.

We are so positive that we can cure constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine free of all cost if we fail.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels and make constipation more chronic. Besides their use becomes a habit that is dangerous and often fatal.

Constipation is caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those organs and restore them to healthier activity.

The discovery of the active principle of our remedy evolved the labor of the world's greatest research chemists. It possesses all the best qualities of the remedial active principle of the best known intestinal tonics, and is particularly prompt in its results.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are exceedingly pleasant to take and are ideal for children. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They have a neutral action on other organs or systems. They do not purge or cause any inconvenience whatever. They will positively cure a chronic or habitual constipation and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. F. F. Stone, Norway, Me.

Two Eggs at One Laying.

E. H. Hess gives an unusual egg-laying performance in the National Stockman and Farmer. He says:

We often hear about the goose that laid the golden eggs and the hen that lays an egg every day, but one of my White Wyandotte hens has gone one better and laid two well-formed good sized eggs at one sitting.

In the fall of 1901, a hen came in the stable and made a nest in the straw back of the cows. After I was through milking I looked for the egg and to my surprise there were two there. I could not affirm positively that she laid both eggs at that sitting and thought therefore I would watch for a similar occurrence. Two days afterwards the same hen came in the cow stable again while I was milking, and assuring myself of no eggs being in the stable I awaited developments. I was in full view of the hen as she selected a place for a nest and after she was through with her task, I again found two well formed eggs. The above may be hard to believe but the reader can be assured that the facts are as stated. Had it not occurred the second time I would not have been convinced myself and should never have reported it to the public.

It is to be regretted that many people, especially in the smaller towns, are continually "knocking" the place. How often have you heard when a new thing was projected, this expression, "It might do in some places but not in this town. You don't know the people here yet." Now, as matters of fact human nature is the same the world over, to be sure environments are different in different places, but the one thing above all others that will injure the interests of any town is the chronic croaker.

A Surprised Minister.

"For many years I have been a sufferer from bronchial catarrh, and had despaired of anything like a cure. Judge of my pleasant surprise when I first used Hyomei, which brought complete relief. Hyomei has been a veritable godsend."

—Rev. Charles H. Haxley, Sardinia, Ohio.
Thousands of catarrh sufferers have given up in despair. They have tried stomach dosing, snuff, sprays and douches without success, and now believe catarrh to be incurable.

But Frank Kimball, the druggist, holds out hope to all distressed. He sells a comedy called Hyomei which is guaranteed for catarrh, colds, coughs, bronchitis, asthma and croup. High-o-mey is Hyomei (pronounced "high-o-mey") is medicated with full of the healthy virtues of the mountain pines. You breathe in the delightful antiseptic air, and as it passes over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane, it allays the inflammation, kills the germs, and drives out the disease.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including a hard rubber inhaler, costs but $1.00, and an extra bottle of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, costs but 50 cents. See Frank Kimball, prop. of the Norway Drug Store, about it to-day.

At Camp Wildmere.

The camp life in charge of Irving L. Woodman, who converts his forty-eight acres into an outing grounds each year.

In the closing season, eighty boys from all parts of the country, with a number of older men as counselors, comprised the party, who made the ninth year one of great success. It opened June 25th and closed several days ago.

The boys tell with enthusiasm of their camp life, of the duties of each boy to camp, from the time of rising in the morning until night fall, when they turned in for rest. Standing up exercises, a dip in the water, breakfast and then a long tramp of from ten to fifteen miles.

When night came the boys slept in their blankets, where they happened to stop, and each squad, under the direction of counselors, lighted bonfires as a good night signal to the others. Boating, swimming and out-door sports were indulged in at different times of the day, and the three launches were well patronized most of the time.

The camp, which is about fifty miles from Portland, was visited often by the parents of the boys and summer tourists going through the hills and wilds of Maine. They were drawn principally to the spot by the sight of the many white tents seen for miles in the distance on the side of the hill.

A pleasant memory for the boys, who attend the camp each year, is a little paper they got out in typewritten form called "Wildmere Flashies," each one receiving a copy of the weekly issue, containing a record of the past week's doings.

At the close of camp, field sports were run on from the Southern, Middle and Western states were among the number, and when camp broke up a long placard bearing the camp's name was hung from car to car, as it left for Boston and New York. This was also done when the boys opened camp late in June.

If Possible, Don't be a Nagger.

"Women after they reach the age of 40 ought to be confined somewhere for the good of their fellow-beings," remarked an ordinary individual, of but a few years ago, as he swung his heels from the vantage point of a flat-topped desk. "Or," he went on, absorbed in his subject, "the laws of the land ought to make some provision for husbands."

The woman you refer to is the woman who for some reason or other seldom if ever stirs beyond her own doorstep. Sometimes poverty keeps her drudging at her tasks until every bit of hope and enthusiasm and joy is crushed out of her. At other times, though there are ample means, someone has to be the mainstay. Someone has to remain at home to see that the cat and the dog are fed, and that the house does not take legs into itself and walk away. The woman who is disagreeable, always fault-finding and always nagging, is very often the someone upon whom all such tasks are imposed. "She won't mind staying home, she always does," is the way I have heard sisters and daughters dispose of any question relating to the giving up of an evening's pleasure.

Not all women over 40 are cranks and unfit to live with; and men are not as amiable as one of their number would have us believe. The difference in those who lead machine-like existences barren of interests and hope, is a matter of sex. The woman becomes soured and scolds and frets, and nags her discontent and weariness. At other times, you ever ask yourself how it is that so many saloons and bar-rooms are supported?" —Boston Journal.

Why the Sea is Blue.

The sea is blue because the water reflects the blue rays of light, but shallow seas are green because the blue light is mixed with yellow reflections from the sand and stones at the bottom. Green is a mixture of blue and yellow.

In this green light of shallow water all sea weeds grow and for want of the red rays they have golden and tawny leaves. Green and red seaweeds are the exception and blue seaweeds are as rare as blue tree leaves. At this rate land plants grown under green glass ought to turn golden brown, like seaweed. They do. Experiment has shown that under green glass plants grow nearly as well as under clear sunlight.

The Moose.

There is a thrill of excitement in hunting moose which does not come to the hunter of any other of the big game in Maine. One of the great animals, standing higher than an ordinary horse, with high forequarters, bristly mane and huge head adorned with heavy antlers, presents a spectacle which is apt to shake the nerves of the hunter as he sights along the barrel of a rifle. Bull moose killed in Maine frequently weigh 1000 pounds, and it is a small bull indeed which will not tip the scales at 500 or 600 pounds.

The antlers of a mature bull weigh 80 or 100 pounds. These are the antlers with great spreading blades and wide palms, whose serrated edges number a dozen or 20 points on a side. A head is valued for its antlers. These and the "bell" are the distinguishing marks, for a good "bell" adds much to the appearance of a head. The bell is a tuft of gristle and hair which hangs pendant from the under side of the neck, having the appearance of an abnormally developed Adam's apple. In some cases the "bell" is long enough to reach down to the brisket, but this is usual only in the cases of very mature bulls.

In April the calf moose are born. When this time approaches the cows separate themselves from the bulls and go into retirement in obscure thickets, where they know they will be safe from the unnatural fathers, who frequently attack and kill the calf moose as soon as they are born. Here the cow gives birth to her calf, only a single calf being born ordinarily, though cases have been reported on good authority of the dropping of two calves at one birth. The cow moose nurses her ungainly calf in the dark thicket until the little one is able to scamper around. By this time the flies have begun to appear, and the cow takes her calf to the water where feed is plentiful among the lily pads and where there is also refuge from the flies.

All summer long the moose remain by the lakes and ponds feeding on the lily pads and stalks wading in the cool water.

To get this food the bull moose will often submerge himself in the water. Shoving his great head down among the lily stalks he pokes his sensitive muzzle into the mud, feels around with his prehensile upper lip and gathers a mouthful of the stalks. Then he rises to his feet, with his muzzle covered with mud and throws the water in every direction as he shakes himself like a dog, or lets the water drip over his back to drive away the flies.

When the bull is engaged in feeding in this fashion it is possible to approach within a short distance of it. Canoeing parties in Maine during the summer have taken many pictures of giant bull moose and -cows with calves, getting within easy range before being discovered. Sometimes the moose not only shows no alarm of human intrusion, but looks at the intruders with inquiring eyes, thinks matters over and finally walks into the woods with lily pads dangling from his mouth and mud and water clinging to his wiry hair.

In September, when the water begins to get cold, the moose leaves his feeding grounds near the water and strikes back up to the ridges, where he finds his winter feed. The bulls, cows and calves all chum together now and it frequently happens that a half dozen or more of the animals are seen close together.

When the frosts begin to tinge the leaves of the maples, beeches and birches, the bull moose shows signs of restlessness. The rutting season is near at hand and the bull starts out in search of a mate. At this time of the year the bull moose is an ugly customer to meet. He knows no fear and will tackle anything that crosses his path.

The guides formerly got many a fine bull in the autumn season by calling the animals with birch bark horns, imitating the call of the cow moose. Paddling his canoe, with his patron seated in the bow to some spot on the lake or pond where he had located a bull, the guide would produce his cleverly made trumpet and begin to sound the low, sibilant notes. If there was a bull moose within hearing he was almost sure to approach the source of the sound gingerly, picking his way through the dense thickets so cleverly that his huge form would make hardly a sound as it passed.

In most cases, however, the bull would answer with bellow. He would repeat his bellow at intervals as he approached and finally by and from the woods near where the hunter was waiting in the canoe. After this he would be a silent actor in the play if the man in the bow of the canoe was expert enough with the rifle.

Jacking, too, was once the means of killing many moose. With a jacklight arranged in the bow of the canoe the guide paddled along the shore of the lake. Perhaps he called the moose from the ridges or found him waiting among the lily pads, but at any rate he brought the canoe to a place where the rays of the jacklight fell upon the moose. The big animal appeared charmed by the light, gazing at it with wide-open eyes, which showed big and green as they reflected the light, and indicated to the hunter just where he should direct his bullet.

This was usually the case in jacking moose, but there were times when the affair did not go so smoothly for the hunter. Sometimes the moose saw the light only to become enraged at it and charge the canoe. If in shallow water the man in the bow had to shoot quick and true or the chances were that he would have a quarter of a ton or more of flying hoofs, bristling hair and enraged moose in the canoe with him.

When the snow and traveling through the woods becomes difficult the moose go into yards. A moose may cover 300 or 400 acres on a hardwood ridge. Here the moose—bulls, cows and calves—gather together to spend the winter. They tramp all over the yard—so much that the snow is trodden down hard—and feed on the small twigs and tender sprouts of the hardwood trees. The bulls and cows will walk up to a slender birch or maple, breast it with their broad chests and walk over it, eating off the sprouts and tender branches as they walk.

Scarcity of Trimming.

The Bishop hats, like most of the smartest specimens of the milliner's genius, do not demand a great deal of trimming, but what there is of it is good. Therefore because a hat has the appearance of being markedly simple, only a tyro would come to the conclusion that it was cheap. The person closely in touch with the commercial side of the hat business realizes that heavy trimming often covers up a multiplicity of shortcomings in regard to shape and material, and that only headgear of the very best description can afford to present itself almost unadorned to the gaze of a critical world.

SOUTH PARIS.

First Lieut. Alfred W. Starbird of the United States regular army has sailed from San Francisco for the Philippines in command of a company of soldiers for the Philippines. Lieut. Starbird comes of fighting stock, for his father, Winfield S. Starbird of South Paris, is a veteran of the Civil War. He was appointed to the army from the University of Maine, where his proficiency in mathematics marked him for a second lieutenant's commission as one of the young men frequently taken into the regular army from such institutions. He has since been promoted to first lieutenant and this command on an army transport ship is likely to lead to further advancement if he makes good.

With a few more seasons of extensive forest fires and a few more years of unrestricted timber butchering, the murmuring pines and the hemlocks will be conspicuous in Maine only because of the place they occupy in song and story.

WHAT IS RHEUMATISM?

Well Known Remedy That Absolutely Cures This Dread Disease.

No other disease is so painful as rheumatism. Uric Acid crystals are deposited in and about the joints, and that is called rheumatism. The only way in which this painful and dangerous disease can be absolutely cured is with Neuralgic Anodyne, a remedy that has an entirely different action from anything else.

Small doses are taken internally that reach the nerve centers and prevent the formation of Uric Acid. It is also rubbed on the affected parts, quieting and relieving the pain, reducing the rheumatic fever, and restoring health to the aching tissues and muscles.

A large sized bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne costs but 25c, and it is so successful in curing rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache and relieving bruises and sprains that the proprietors, The Twitchell-Champin Co., Portland, Me., authorize dealers everywhere to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

EAST PARIS.

Beiter Fellin the Well.

A two-year old heifer belonging to F. L. Cotton broke through the covering of a well and fell in. The well was a spring six or seven feet deep and eight feet across. The spring supplied water for a family near by. They saw that the water had been disturbed and went up to the spring to find out the cause. The neighbors were quickly informed and a dozen or more were soon on the spot. A pool of water was put up over the well and pulley block attached, and she was soon got out. She is now all right.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

The Andrews Large Barn.

H. F. & E. Andrews have their new barn completed. It is one of the most barns that has been built in this vicinity. It is 70x36 feet and contains stalls to accommodate thirty horses.

On the first floor in the left hand corner is a good sized room which is to be used for the office. The stalls along the right side of the barn are of good size, well lighted and the partitions between them are of wood for about four feet and are topped with an iron grating, making a great improvement in the looks of the barn.

On the second floor in the left hand corner, over the office, is a room partitioned off which is to be used as a bedroom. Opposite this room is a large room to be used for the harness room.

Between these two rooms is a large trap door where hay or most anything in fact could be raised to the second floor by the means of a large hoisting windlass.

The remaining space on the second floor is for hay.

At the right of the barn Mr. Andrews has a good sized carriage shed, the upper end of which forms a wing to the main barn and contains a number of stalls.

At the rear of the barn is a shed divided in two parts, one part to be used for the storage of wool and the remainder to be used to keep farming implements, carriages and whatever else they might see fit to use it for.

The stable is to be opened in about two weeks, as E. E. Andrews is going West, Saturday, to purchase some horses which he expects will arrive in about two weeks.

An Unequaled Record of Game.

Record of five days' fishing in "this pond" says John Woodman, manager of the Lawrenceville Lake, by John A. Woodman and W. E. Bartlett:—

Oct. 25, Friday, 20 pickerel.
Oct. 26, Saturday, 2 pickerel, 1 deer.
Oct. 27, Sunday, 19 pickerel.
Oct. 28, Monday, 3 pickerel, 7 bass.
Oct. 29, Tuesday, 1 bass all big ones.
Total 70 pickerel, 7 bass all big ones and 1 deer. No business done on Sunday.
